the remaining pins all have different functions which include providing power for each hdmi cable, ensuring the smoothest transmission possible from one device to the next, and much more